

Jubilee Year of St. Aloysius Gonzaga, SJ

The Holy See has announced the celebration of a Jubilee Year of St. Aloysius from March 9, 2018 to March 9, 2019. The church will focus its attention on young people with the October Synod of Bishops in Rome on “Young People, Faith and Vocation Discernment” and the January 2019 World Youth Day in Panama.

St. Aloysius entered the Jesuits in 1585 and studied under Robert Bellarmine, SJ. He professed First Vows in 1587 and studied at the Roman College. In 1591, a plague swept over Rome. St. Aloysius volunteered to serve at the Jesuit-established hospital, where he and his fellow Jesuits worked directly with the afflicted. He contracted the plague and died in Rome on June 21, 1591 at the age of 23. He was canonized in 1726 by Pope Benedict XIII.

We must return
to the radical surrender
of one's life
to Jesus Christ
and to the cause of the Gospel.

How can Jesuits help young people grow so deeply in their faith and love for Christ that they may have the courage to confront the idols of the culture?

How can we help young people overcome fear and anger often stirred up for political reasons against those who are ‘different’ or ‘other,’ expressing instead welcome, trust and compassion?

Superior General of the Society of Jesus*
